Pentagon Back Tracks On Family Housing;
Chapels, Recreational Facilities Get Axe

The Defense Department, under obvious Budget Bureau pressure, has done an about face and ordered the Secretaries of the Army, Navy and Air Force to hold back use of government funds for family housing and recreational and morale facilities that earlier had been advocated at the Capitol by Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson.

The new action confirms speculation that the recently issued Guidelines to the Service Secretaries (Text, THE JOURNAL 22 Oct.) would result in abandonment of previous defense spending plans.

Under date of 28 Oct., the Defense Department has issued Instruction No. 4270.17, signed by Deputy Defense Secretary Reuben B. Robertson, Jr., acting for Mr. Wilson who is in Geneva, which

Picture Brighter
Four Days Earlier

Four days before the new Defense Department economy order, the military housing picture was described in bright terms by Maj. Gen. Raymond J. Reeves, USAF, Director of Military Personnel, Headquarters USAF.

Speaking at the U. S. Naval Academy, General Reeves said the Air Force is "in its first major program since WWII to provide permanent family housing on AF bases directly from appropriated funds."

He added that other units would be built under authority contained in the National Housing Act, commenting that 52,000 units were planned for FY '57.

National Guard Chief Calls Reserve Law
"Face Saver," Questions Its Efficacy

Maj. Gen. Ellard A. Walsh, President of the National Guard Association, says it is "questionable" that the new Reserves Forces Act "will do anything for the Army Reserve."

In his annual report to the 77th General Conference of the NGA, in New Orleans, General Walsh said the new Reserve law also "does little or nothing to strengthen the Army and Air National Guard, and to what extent it will affect these components adversely, or be used to their detriment, only time will tell."

The "initial response to the Army's six-month trainee program for the Army Reserve has been extremely poor," he said. He quoted figures which show that only 876 out of an assigned quota of 5,000 had volunteered as of 27 Sept. "By far the greater number of these," General Walsh added, "elected to defer their training until after graduating from high school."

Under the present induction system, he said, "thousands of young men will con-

PX Service Gives $32 Million For Morale; Gen. Peckham Tells Of Expansion Plan

Army and Air Force commanders during the past fiscal year received $19,304,222 in direct dividend payments from the Army-Air Force Exchange Service—equivalent to $1.23 per man per month—for morale and welfare activities.

In addition, the Exchange Service, commanded by Maj. Gen. H. L. Peckham, USA, was able to pay $13,400,000 to the Army-Air Force Joint Welfare Board, and allocate $7,285,000 to installation commanders for PX expansion and improvement.

General Peckham, meeting with newsmen in Washington, told of successes in reducing prices on appliances, film, electric razors and housewares, in accordance with requests from installation commanders.

Questioned as to chances of increasing the inventory items which may be carried by PX's, General Peckham expressed doubt that Congress would authorize such action at this time. But he pointed out that at remote facilities, such as Loring AFB, Me., approval is available for carrying items, such as women's dresses, that may not be handled by other exchanges in the ZI.

With his deputy, Brig. Gen. Edward B. Gallant, USAF, General Peckham recently returned from an inspection trip to France, Germany, Austria and England, part of his effort to visit world-wide exchange operations.

Reporting on overseas activities, General Peckham said steps are being taken to reduce further the time required between the placement of a special order outside the U. S. and the delivery of the merchandise.

The Exchange Service, with headquarters in New York City, procured during fiscal '55 some $222,181,864 cost value of merchandise in the U. S. for overseas exchanges, totalling 137,808 purchase orders and 3,927,239 line items.

The 19 overseas exchange systems realized savings of about $2.7 million as a result of distribution allowances, custom duty refunds and car pooling programs, General Peckham noted, noting that these exchanges also were credited with $590,000 in other savings.

PX GLOBAL TRAVELERS—Maj. Gen. H. L. Peckham, USA, Chief, Army-Air Force Exchange Service, left, and his Deputy, Brig. Gen. Edward B. Gallant, USAF, right, recently completed an inspection trip to Europe, where they conferred with Col. Wilbur M. Skidmore, USA, EES Exchange Officer, and his opposite number, Col. Hugh Bowe, USAF. Their inspection took them also to the Ansbach, Germany, EES Depot, where they were briefed by Lt. Col. S. M. Walker, USA, Chief, Operations Division, EES, (center in above photo).

The Exchange Service Chief, emphasizing the continual effort being made to provide better customer service, said that domestic exchanges will spend about $8,000,000 in the current fiscal year to establish, maintain and improve facilities. He reported that during the past year, 58 exchange buildings were air conditioned, bringing to more than 60 per cent the number of domestic main exchanges and main cafeterias which have this convenience.

General Peckham said that progress continues to be made in retaining exemption from state taxes for military personnel on exchange-purchased merchandise.

Pentagon Back Tracks On Family Housing

spells out policies for Military Public Works operations through 30 June 1957.

The Defense Department has ordered that, with few exceptions, no appropriated funds will be used for family housing.

It said that scores of recreational and morale projects will be deferred "unless exceptional circumstances permit."

Since Mr. Wilson took over at the Pentagon, his aides have been developing standard criteria for recreational facilities, such as the ratio of troops to a swimming pool, golf course, or gymnasium.

Now, the Pentagon stipulates that "educational wings to chapels, additional swimming pools when one already exists, golf courses, bowling alleys, guest houses, and entertainment work shops will be deferred unless exceptional circumstances permit."

The new directive recalls a similar edict issued at the behest of the Budget Bureau shortly after the Eisenhower Administration took office.

On the family housing front, the Defense Department intends to rely primarily on legislation which authorizes mortgage guarantees and other assistance to private contractors for construction of family quarters for Service families.

Mr. Robertson's order states: "Except for projects where design has already advanced to a point permitting early initiation of construction, and where a change at this stage would cause unacceptable delay in fulfilling urgent requirements, appropriated funds will not be applied unless substantial evidence can be presented to show that it is not possible to provide housing under the provision of Title VIII of the National Housing Act or other legislative programs."

Linked with the restrictions on family housing, the Services will be permitted only limited authority for sidewalk, curb and street-lighting projects. Fencing will be restricted to sensitive or critical areas only, it was stated.

New ECI Courses

Basic Doctrine for Character Guidance, a new one-volume course offered by the Extension Course Institute USAF, is one of two courses in this career area programmed by ECI.

The second, which will be available soon, is a 12-volume course on The Air Force Chaplain. The character guidance course has been set up for commanders, supervisors and others in a position to influence the thinking and habits of subordinates.

The course develops the theory that freedom is a moral concept, and emphasizes the need for character guidance to build a citizenry capable of preserving the ideals and practices of freedom.

Y. & D. Lets Diesel Contracts

The Bureau of Yards and Docks, as construction agents for the Air Force, has announced the award of 15 diesel oil pumps for the USAF pipelines in Spain to the White Diesel Engine Division of the White Motor Co. in Springfield, Ohio. The bid price was $713,304. Five U. S. companies entered bids.

A previous award for 13 diesel generator sets for the Spanish airbases was made to the Enterprise Diesel Engine Division of the General Metals Corp., Oakland, Calif.

The PX Chief Reports To His Clientele

(The following statement is made by Maj. Gen. H. L. Peckham, USA, Chief, Army and Air Force Exchange Service, in the preface to the annual report for fiscal '55, made available this week.)

"During the past fiscal year I have had the opportunity to visit all of the major Army and Air Force commanders in the United States and the major commanders in Alaska, Japan, Korea, Okinawa, Formosa, the Philippines, Guam, and Hawaii. In the coming year, accompanied by my Deputy, Brig. Gen. Edward B. Gallant, USAF, I intend to visit Army and Air Force commanders and exchange operating personnel in Europe. Eventually, I hope to complete visits to each of the overseas major commands.

"In the course of these visits I have been greatly impressed with the high standards of exchange service maintained and the many gains made in bringing improved management and greater efficiency to the operation. I have also found that the similarities between domestic and overseas exchange operation and customer requirements grow steadily. I believe that in the future, further progress will be made toward bringing overseas and domestic exchanges even closer together in achieving a uniformly high standard of service to all military personnel no matter where they may be stationed.

"This Annual Report reflects notable achievements in improving customer service. The results are the product of team work. The major commanders of the Army and the Air Force, the installation commanders, and exchange personnel can be proud of the progress made in this past fiscal year. This same spirit of cooperation and common purpose cannot help but produce constantly improved customer benefits in the year to come."

USN Plans Flight Tests Of 2d SeaMaster Type

The second in the series of new multi-jet P6M SeaMaster seaplanes has been completed; the new plane soon will begin flight tests at Baltimore, Md.

The announcement was made jointly by the Navy and Glenn L. Martin Aircraft Co., upon the occasion of a visit to view the prototype plane by Admiral Arleigh A. Burke, USN, Chief of Naval Operations, and Admiral The Earl Mountbatten of Burma, K. G., the First Sea Lord and Chief of Naval Staff of Great Britain.

The prototype plane, which has been undergoing flight tests since 14 July 54, is the world's first multi-jet attack seaplane. Pioneer aircraft in the Navy's concept of mobile seaplane striking forces, the SeaMaster prototype is in the 600-mile-an-hour class.

Unlike the prototype, the second in the series has ample space within the fuselage for elaborate flight test equipment. It is fitted with complete navigational, bombing, and communications systems planned for the entire SeaMaster series.

All superficial design changes considered advisable as a result of flight tests of the prototype have been incorporated into the second seaplane.

Grayson Tucker Is Deputy For Applications Engr.

Grayson A. Tucker is the new Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense (Applications Engineering), effective 1 Nov., 1955. His appointment was announced by Assistant Secretary Frank D. Newbury.

National Guard

tinue to render no military service and incur no reserve service obligation." He declared that "the burden for the Nation's security will continue to fall on the shoulders of prior-service personnel, or veterans."

General Walsh said it is difficult to understand why the Administration and the Defense Department pressed so strongly for enactment of a Reserve law which eliminates none of the existing inequities. "Somehow the conclusion is inescapable," he stated, "that the real objective at the end was to pass some kind or any kind of a reserve act, to save a lot of faces."

The NGA President also discussed the procurement of doctors and dentists. He said this problem is "still acute," and that it has been brought to the attention of the Reserve Forces Policy Board.

The Association also has asked the Army to reexamine its policies and to give some thought to the possibility of upgrading medical officers or re-instituting the policy in effect prior to WWII for a service-in-grade structure. Another suggestion would provide that command function in medical units may be exercised by Medical Service Corps personnel.

THE SPECIAL COMMITTEE ON THE HISTORY of the National Guard, headed by Maj. Gen. Jim Dan Hill of Wisconsin, reported the project is well on its way and the actual writing of the history may be started by the middle of next year. The Committee expressed its gratitude to THE JOURNAL for making its files available to the NGA librarian.

The Committee on Legislation, headed by Maj. Gen. Donald W. McGowan of New Jersey, reported that the Congress has promised "early consideration" of the Survivor Benefits bill next year. The Association also will press for enactment of S 1807, which equalizes the quarters allowance of enlisted members of the Reserve and National Guard components with similar allowances made to members of the active forces under the Dependents' Assistance Act.

A "determined effort" also will be made to expedite Congressional consideration of S. 1643 and HR 6408 (Senate and House Equalization of Benefits bills), and HR 7290, which authorizes the appointment of female nurses in the Army and Air National Guard.

MAJ. GEN. EDGAR C. ERICKSON, Chief of the National Guard Bureau, reported that the Guard has set a year-end strength goal of 495,000, including 425,000 for the Army National Guard and 70,400 for the Air National Guard.

"To meet these figures," he said, "it will be necessary that on the Army side we make a net gain of approximately 66,000 and that the Air National Guard figures, by the year's end, reflect a net increase of 9,000." The 30 June 1955 strength of the Guard was 419,547.

One of the major problems "appears to be attrition," he said. "If we are to meet our strength goals, it will be necessary that we cut down the high rate of attrition in our ranks." One way to do this would be to offer "better training made more interesting, good social and athletic programs," he said. "Generally the answer is to sell the Guard through good programming to the man already in our ranks so well that he will want to stay."

General Erickson noted that "The Armed Forces Reserve Act of 1952 places the National Guard in the Ready Reserve, but there is no law on the books that makes it a reserve that is really ready. This can only be done by maintaining strength and a high degree of training before mobilization."

Col. Austin Replaces B.G.

Col. Gordon H. Austin, USAF, formerly with War Plans Division, Hqs USAF, has been assigned as Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations at Hqs CADF Grandview AFB, Mo. He is filling the position vacated by Brig. Gen. G. Clifford Rees, USAF, who assumed command of the newly activated 20th Air Division.

All New Warships Will Be Atomic-Powered By Early 1960's, RAdm. Rickover Predicts

By the early 1960's all major naval vessels authorized for construction will be propelled by nuclear power.

This prediction was made by RAdm. Hyman G. Rickover, USN, Assistant Chief of the Bureau of Ships for Nuclear Propulsion, in an address before the San Francisco Council of the Navy League on Theodore Roosevelt's birthday, 27 Oct.

Admiral Rickover, who is credited with pushing development of the world's first atomic submarine, the USS Nautilus, through to completion, told his audience that the Atomic Energy Commission is presently developing for the Navy a group of nuclear power plants in a range of power ratings covering all feasible applications. Included in the group under development is a series of reactors ranging from about 3,000 to 40,000 shaft horsepower, which can be used singly or in multiple. Five new types of nuclear power plants are currently being designed for specific ship application, he stated.

Already, the Admiral pointed out, the Navy is authorized to build six nuclear powered submarines in addition to the Nautilus and the Seawolf which is expected to be in operation in 1956. Four of the six authorized by Congress will be smaller than the Seawolf or the Nautilus. Work has already begun on one of the vessels at the Electric Boat Co. yard in New London, Conn. Preparations to build another is going on at the Mare Island Naval Shipyard in California. The other two small A-Subs will be built at Portsmouth Naval Shipyard in New Hampshire.

One of the remaining two A-powered submarines will be a new attack type with a speed greater than that of the Nautilus. The other will be the Navy's largest submarine, and the first one to be powered by two reactors. This type is being designed to be fast enough to operate with a fast carrier task force and to provide it with radar information, the Admiral revealed.

In addition, he said, the Navy is working on designs for nuclear powered surface vessels. For the past several years the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Co., Newport News, Va., has been working on the design of an A-powered aircraft carrier. And, the Shipbuilding Division of the Bethlehem Steel Company, Quincy, Mass., has begun work on the design of another type of nuclear powered surface vessel.

The advent of a nuclear powered fleet will mean greatly increased striking power for the United States, the Admiral indicated.

A major advantage of nuclear power for any naval vessel, he noted, is in logistics. The cruising range and the strategic value of conventional warships are limited by the amount of fuel they can carry. When their fuel is used up, conventional ships must turn to a fueling ship or a refueling station. Such operations are time consuming, hazardous, and reduce the ships' effectiveness.

The use of nuclear ships, on the other hand, will permit virtually unlimited cruising ranges, even at high speeds, Admiral Rickover notes. No refueling facilities will be required to replenish their propulsion fuel. This will be done routinely as a part of regularly scheduled overhauls.

This means that the construction and overhaul facilities needed to service tankers supplying conventional ships will be reduced. Fewer escort vessels will be required to protect the remaining tankers. Officers and men now assigned to fleet support ships and shore facilities will be released for other duties. All of this, Admiral Rickover told his audience, will result in less drain on our manpower during wartime—"and manpower is the factor which ultimately limits a nation's war potential."

"Our aim," he said, "is to design nuclear power plants which can last for an entire war without being refueled."

In addition to reduced logistics requirements, another advantage of nuclear power is the fact that the fuel requires no oxygen. For the first time, "we are not dependent on the earth's atmosphere for combustion of fuel. The significance of this can be understood when it is realized that a large naval vessel consumes 600,000 cubic feet, or 20 tons, of air to burn the more than one ton of fuel oil required each minute at full power."

In A-ships, a great volume of space will be saved by the elimination of supply ducts and exhaust stacks. This saving of space is particularly advantageous in aircraft carriers. Space now used for fuel oil can be used to carry larger quantities of aviation fuel, ammunition, and other supplies. Thus, A-carriers will be able to support many more hours of aircraft flight, and its military capabilities correspondingly increased.

At the same time, the elimination of stacks on atomic propelled aircraft carriers will permit a better arrangement of the upper decks for aircraft operation.

The performance of the Nautilus, the Admiral stated, has changed the whole science of anti-submarine warfare. "Her impact on naval tactics and strategy may well approach that of the airplane."

In order to give his audience an idea of the advantages of nuclear propulsion, Admiral Rickover revealed that the Nautilus, on an early cruise in the Caribbean, broke a number of long standing records. On the cruise, the Nautilus steamed totally submerged from New London, Conn., to San Juan, Puerto Rico—a distance of more than 1,300 miles in 84 hours. Among the records set on the history-making trip are: first, this was the greatest distance, by a factor of 10, ever steamed, completely submerged, by any submarine; second, her average speed for the entire trip was about 16 knots—the first time any submerged combatant submarine maintained such a high speed for more than one hour; third, this was the longest period that any United States submarine cruised completely submerged; and fourth, this was the fastest passage ever made between New London and San Juan by a submarine of any type, traveling either surfaced or submerged.

1st Armored Will Move To Ft. Polk This Month

The 1st Armored "Old Ironsides" Division will move this month to Ft. Polk, La., from Ft. Hood, Tex., where it has been located since its reactivation in February 1951.

The 1st Armored will remain at Ft. Polk after Exercise Sagebrush, to be held in that area between 1 Nov. and 15 Dec. 1955. Also scheduled for permanent location at Ft. Polk are III Corps Headquarters, now at Ft. Hood, and necessary logistical and support units. The total number of military personnel expected to be stationed at Ft. Polk is approximately 19,000.

Ft. Hood remains the home station of the 4th Armored Division.

The permanent change of station will not become effective until those individuals of the 1st Armored Division who have families, automobiles or other valid reasons, have been given an opportunity to return to their former duty station at Ft. Hood after completion of the maneuver to arrange their affairs.

Terminal Engineer

Col. Robert C. Bahr, USA, has been assigned to the Atlantic Transportation Terminal Command at Brooklyn, N. Y., as Staff Engineer. It is announced by Brig. Gen. James Glore, USA, Commanding General. Colonel Bahr was Deputy Engineer at the Ryukus Command on Okinawa.

Colonel Bahr is married to the former Mary Ann Forbish, who resides with their three children, Robert C., Jr., 12, Julia Ann, 11, and Henry W., 6, at the Dartmouth Apartments, Louisville, Ky.

Col. Ison Named

Col. Frank S. Ison, USA, has been named as Director of Administration for the Seattle Army Terminal effective 1 Nov., it is announced by Col. E. Jeff Barnette, USA, SAT Commander.

He replaces Col. John J. McCauley, USAF, who has held the position since December 1954.

Social Security

(The following report on Social Security and the Armed Forces was prepared by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in connection with the observance of 11 Nov. as Veterans Day.)

ON Veterans Day, it is interesting to see how the relationship of Social Security to service in the Armed Forces has changed during the years.

The original Social Security law did not mention military or naval service. The question wasn't so important in those days. Our Armed Services were at a peacetime low, and most soldiers and sailors were "career men" who could look forward to an Army or Navy pension when they retired.

Accordingly, a period of active service was just the same as a period of unemployment, as far as Social Security was concerned. Military or naval pay didn't count toward benefits. In fact, time spent in uniform actually reduced the social security payments that a veteran or his family might receive through his civilian work.

Then came Selective Service and the Second World War. Millions of civilians were called to duty. Comparatively few of them became careerists; most returned to civilian status upon discharge.

The period of active service had an adverse effect on the Social Security status of these men and women. It either delayed their becoming insured under Social Security, or it reduced the protection they acquired through civilian work before entering service.

In 1946, Congress took action to partly remedy this condition. An amendment to the Social Security law was passed, providing that a veteran would be considered insured under Social Security if he died within three years after being discharged. That helped to protect the family of a veteran unfortunate enough to die before he had a chance to build up his Social Security, but it didn't help those who died in service, or who lived more than three years after discharge.

Later amendments broadened the Social Security protection for servicemen and women. In 1950, Congress provided that active service in World War II (defined as September 16, 1940, to July 24, 1947) would generally count toward Social Security. In effect, the veteran received the same coverage as if he had worked in a civilian job under Social Security at the rate of $160 a month for the period of active duty.

In 1952 and 1953, recognizing that occupation duties, the Korean conflict and unsettled world conditions were keeping many more young men and women from engaging in private employment or self-employment, Congress extended the pe-

"Pay The Troops," Gen. Taylor Orders

General Maxwell D. Taylor, Army Chief of Staff, has instructed finance and accounting officers that they must not refuse to make casual and transient payments to service members "merely on the basis of an alleged increased workload or because of the specialized nature of the office."

General Taylor declares (in Circular 35-45) that Army policy "requires that prompt and proper payments will be made to military personnel wherever possible."

Here is the text of the Chief of Staff's order:

"1. It has come to the attention of the Department of the Army that in some instances finance and accounting officers are refusing to make casual and transient payments to service members on leave, temporary duty, or permanent change of station and have referred these members to other disbursing offices.

"2. The policy of the Department of the Army requires that prompt and proper payments will be made to military personnel wherever possible. In furtherance of this policy all disbursing officers share a common responsibility for the payment of military personnel. The practice of referring transient members to another office is inconsistent with the Department of the Army policy. While paragraph 11, AR 35-2035, is permissive in nature in that it provides that disbursing officers may make transient or casual payments, it was not intended that payment be refused merely on the basis of an alleged increased workload or because of the specialized nature of the office. The intent of this provision of regulations is that disbursing officers should refuse payment only in those instances in which there exists a doubt regarding the propriety of the payment.

"3. All Army disbursing officers will effect casual and transient payments in accordance with the provisions of paragraph 11, AR 35-2035.

Period of Social Security coverage to June 30, 1955. And the present Congress again extended the deadline, this time to April 1956.

As a result, most veterans who had active duty anytime between September 1940 and April 1956, will be given Social Security credits for each month of service. The service credits cannot be given, however, if the same period of service is used by another government agency other than the Veterans Administration, in computing a monthly benefit. These credits are added to the individual's Social Security account at the time an application is made for either retirement or death benefits under Social Security.

A leaflet entitled "Soldiers and Sailors and Social Security" available at all Social Security offices, contains additional information.

Outlook For Career Personnel Improved, Says Rep. Kilday; Sees Better Pay, Housing

"We can look forward to an improved situation for career military personnel, with better housing and schooling, concurrent travel, fewer changes in station, and better pay and promotion possibilities," Representative Paul J. Kilday (D-Tex) told Medical Field Service School graduates in a ceremony at Brooke Army Medical Center, Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., on 28 Oct.

"In addition," he added, "so long as our boys must be conscripted, we must give them the best we can procure, including medical service."

Representative Kilday addressed 111 Regular Army physicians and dentists completing an Army Medical Service Company Officer Course.

Brig. Gen. Elbert DeCoursey, Commandant of the Medical Field Service

School, presented the Skinner Medal to 1st Lt. John Joseph Castellot, during the ceremony. The award is given to the physician in each company officer course who has the highest scholastic rating.

Prior to the graduation exercise, Representative Kilday, long a ranking member of the House Armed Service Committee, and sponsor of the 1954 Pay Bill, was given ceremonial honors in the Quadrangle of the Medical Field Service School. Music for the ceremony was furnished by the 323d Army Band.

Sharing the tribute with Representative Kilday were Maj. Gen. William E. Shambora, Brooke Army Medical Center Commander; General DeCoursey; Brig. Gen. Stuart G. Smith, Brooke Army Hospital Commander; and Brig. Gen. James M. Epperly, Director of Dental Activities at the Center.

SAC NCO Academy Grads May Organize

"Just Over the Horizon"

EXECUTIVE PLANES with C.A.E. Turbine Power

CONTINENTAL J69
Compact, easily serviced. 920 lbs. thrust. Single-stage centrifugal compressor, single annular combustor, single-stage turbine; hollow-shaft fuel introduction provides excellent atomization and is non-clogging—eliminates need of high-pressure fuel system.

"The era of jet-powered business aircraft . . . undoubtedly is just over the horizon." . . . This is the conclusion* reached by Herb Fisher, Chief, Aviation Development Division, The Port of New York Authority, after flying the MS 760 twin jet executive transport which Beech Aircraft Corp. has been demonstrating in America this summer. U. S. version of the ship will be powered by Continental J69, raising the service ceiling to 35,500 feet and maximum speed to 410 mph. . . . This pioneer twin jet transport marks an important addition to the list of applications for which the J69 is admirably suited in performance characteristics, and design. The engine is now in production at C. A. E.

Lubrication Intervals for TELETYPE 28

60 wpm—3,000 hours operation or 1 year
75 wpm—2,400 hours operation or 9 mos.
100 wpm—1,500 hours operation or 6 mos.
(Based on 8-hour day operation)

Compare them with any other telegraph printer

As you can see, the lubrication interval for the new Teletype Page Printer is extended beyond anything before known in printing telegraphy. In fact, all elements of the new Teletype Printer have been designed with attention-free operation in mind.

There's the new featherweight carriage, featuring a 2-ounce Typebox, that replaces the conventional typebasket carriage weighing 10 times as much... and the all-steel clutch which eliminates the frequent lubrication required by the felt clutch in most other telegraph printers.

Motions are softer, loads are lighter, there's less friction, less heat.

The result is that this new Teletype Printer cuts maintenance to as little as one-fifth of that normally required for equipment not having these new features.

If you would like to complete your files with technical information on this revolutionary new Teletype Printer, write to our new sales and service office: Teletype Corporation, Dept. AN11, 4100 Fullerton Ave., Chicago 39, Ill.

Navy Readopts Officer's Service Dress Uniform "Charlie"; Three Other Changes

The Navy has readopted the officer's Service Dress Uniform "Charlie."

The revival of the pre-WWII uniform designed for wear at Summer afternoon and evening functions does not require officers to purchase new items of clothing. All components of the "C" uniform are already part of the officer's wardrobe. It consists of the blue service coat, white service trousers, white shoes, and white cap cover. The black four-in-hand necktie will be worn with the reinstated uniform except on formal occasions when a black bow-tie is prescribed.

Three other changes will soon be incorporated into the Navy's Uniform Regulations.

Included in the changes will be a provision prescribing the Full Dress Uniform for "official visits" when side honors are rendered for officers above the rank of lieutenant commander. Informal calls, however, will continue to require only the Uniform of the Day.

NAVY NURSES have been authorized to wear the short-sleeved white indoor duty uniform as an alternate to the long-sleeved white dress uniform. Before the Uniform Regulations were changed, the short-sleeved white uniform was restricted to operating-room nurses, dietitians, and similar specialists.

HOSPITAL CORPSMEN serving with the Marines may now wear the metal chevron rate insignia which was recently adopted by the Corps. The rate insignia will be worn on the right collar of the utility coat, shirt, and combat or field type clothing. In addition, a distinctive Medical or Dental insignia will be worn on the left collar to indicate the individual's specialty.

Both the metal chevron and insignia will be issued by the Marine Corps as soon as they are available.

At the same time, the Navy clarified and reiterated that dress aiguillettes, rather than the service type, are to be worn by aides and attaches whenever the Full Dress uniform is prescribed.

QUALITY CONTROL FOR ROCKET ENGINE RELIABILITY

Today, as never before, rocket power is a dominant military requirement. Aerojet-General propulsion devices are used from Pole to Equator. They must operate with the flick of a switch at any altitude, any attitude, over extreme temperature ranges.

But the price of optimum reliability is maximum vigilance. At Aerojet, this means the uncompromising control of every characteristic of every engine, every component in research, development and production.

There are no short cuts to certainty. Aerojet uses all the techniques of modern quality programs — new-design control, acceptance sampling plans, statistical analysis, quality auditing. In actual test-firings of complete rocket systems, Aerojet has spent over six million man-hours since 1942.

The results are unique in the rocket propulsion field: Aerojet products in field use have an overall measured reliability of 99.6%.

South Korea's highest military award, the Order of Military Merit Taeguk, has been presented to Maj. Gen. Harlan C. Parks, USAF, Senior Member of the United Nations Command component of the Military Armistice Commission.

The award cited General Parks' role in "supervising the implementation of the Armistice in Korea . . ."

Welfare Funds Aid Golf Courses At SAC Bases

The Strategic Air Command welfare fund council recently allocated $150,460 for the construction of golf facilities at certain SAC bases.

New nine-hole courses will be constructed at Pinecastle, Ellsworth, March and Westover. Six other bases will receive additional facilities such as club houses, putting greens, watering systems and lights for driving ranges. They are Bergstrom, Smoky Hill, Forbes, Turner and MacDill.

New SAC Colonels Go To School At Hdqs

Thirty-three colonels, all newly assigned to SAC, attended an indoctrination and financial management seminar at SAC Headquarters, Offutt AFB, Neb., 24-29 Oct.

The first three days covered indoctrination by SAC directors, who explained the command's overall mission. The last two and a half days were utilized by the SAC comptroller to explain financial management as it effects the command.

Colonels attending the seminar were: Corwin P. Vansant and Edward A. Van Dyke, Offutt; Nathan J. Adams, Willard A. Beauchamp, and Hubert Zemke, Turner; Jacob J. Brogger, Charles D. Lewis, Thomas B. ### ANTI SEAGULL DEVICE?

The Air Force is looking for a fool-proof method for keeping seagulls off its runways.

It's open to any and all suggestions.

An investigation of an accident last Summer at Logan Airport in Boston revealed that a collision of the plane with a seagull was the primary cause of the accident.

The Royal Air Force in Great Britain has been similarly plagued by seagulls, and has found that scattered mothballs on runways are partially successful in solving the problem.

The Directorate of Maintenance Engineering and the Surgeon's Office at Headquarters, Air Materiel Command, is studying the problem . . . and would appreciate any help.

Cited For Heads-Up Flying

By successfully executing emergency landings, two Strategic Air Command pilots became members recently of the Heads-Up Flying Club.

The new members are Maj. William W. Deyerlee, Fairchild AFB, Wash., who landed a RB-36 after its rudder tore loose in flight, and 1st Lt. George C. Billings, Bergstrom AFB, Tex., who safely landed a F-84F Thunderjet after an inflight control malfunction immediately after take-off.

"SURVIVAL" PAY

Airmen attending the rugged survival training at Stead AFB, Nev., are now authorized $1 a day per diem. The effective date is 1 July. Prior to that date airmen were not entitled to per diem.

Name M/G Tibbetts New AMC Comptroller

Changes involving two top positions at Headquarters, Air Materiel Command, to be effective 15 December, are announced by General E. W. Rawlings, USAF, Commander of Air Materiel Command, Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio.

Maj. Gen. Kingston E. Tibbetts, USAF, Commander of Warner Robins Air Materiel Area, Ga., will be the new AMC Command Comptroller. He succeeds Maj. Gen. Phillips W. Smith, USAF, who retired after 25 years' service on 30 Sept.

Brig. Gen. A. V. P. Anderson, USAF, Director of Personnel and Support Operations at Headquarters, AMC, will become Commander at Warner Robins, where he had earlier been deputy commander for two years.

Maj. Gen. Paul E. Ruestow, USAF, former commander at Air Materiel Force, Pacific Area, will succeed General Anderson.

Also announced was the appointment of Brig. Gen. Stanley T. Wray, USAF, now deputy commander of Warner Robins, as chief, Electronics Defense Systems Division, of Air Materiel Command's Directorate of Procurement and Production.

This division, located in New York City, provides the Air Force supervision and assistance to contractors in their execution of contracts with the Air Force for the development of the Air Electronics Environment System for the North American continent.

AF Spends $881.3-M In Europe In 1955 Fiscal

The Air Force spent $881.3-million in its European theater of operations during the 1955 fiscal year.

Of this total, $279.6-million went for construction contracts. Personal expenditures by Air Force personnel, civilian employees and dependents accounted for $315.5-million; off-shore procurement totaled $286.2-million.

Most of the Air Force money was spent in West Germany. Of the $307.7-million expended there, $156-million was for off-shore procurement. Britain received $259.9 from Air Force expenditures, and France $145.7-million.

In personal expenditures by Air Force personnel and also in construction contracts awarded, Britain was first. These totals were $107.8-million and $97.8-million, respectively. West Germany ran second in both categories with $88.6-million spent by Air Force personnel and $73.2-million spent on construction contracts.

The Air Force's total financial impact in other USAFE areas of responsibility during the 1955 fiscal year follows:

French Morocco $96.3-million; Italy, $12.7-million; Libya, $11.8-million; Saudi Arabia, $10.7-million; Switzerland, $5.3-million; The Netherlands, $4.2-million; Belgium, $4.2-million; Turkey, $3.4-million; Greece, $3.2-million; Spain, $3-million; Norway, $1.1-million; Denmark, $600-thousand; Austria, $500-thousand; Portugal, $200-thousand, and Yugoslavia, $100-thousand.

"Guidelines" Again. Family housing and recreational and morale facilities are now coming in for special attention in the money-saving campaign which seems to be gaining momentum at the Department of Defense. Following the general "Guidelines" for all-around fiscal tightening (see THE JOURNAL, 22 Oct, Page 11), the Department has now issued another, under the signature of Deputy Secretary Robertson, relating specifically to military construction.

Under "Family Housing" the new set of instructions hides its claws in the following language: "Except for projects where design has already advanced to a point permitting early initiation of construction, and where a change at this stage would cause unacceptable delay in fulfilling urgent requirements, appropriated funds will not be applied unless substantial evidence can be presented to show that it is not possible to provide housing under the provision of Title VIII of the National Housing Act or other legislative programs. * * * It is emphasized that maximum practicable utilization must be made of existing facilities, in order that their full usable life may be obtained without excessive maintenance. * * * Improvement projects will be deferred unless actually necessary to carry out assigned missions."

On close examination this evidently means that the housing which the Department told Congress was absolutely necessary and for which Congress appropriated money, will now be administratively deferred and the funds held up as a "saving." Service families will continue to suffer from housing shortages except for whatever can be provided by private capital without use of government funds.

The same short shrift treatment apparently will be given to facilities for recreation and morale—"additional facilities will be deferred when it appears," etc, etc. In this instance it will mean more dependence on non-appropriated funds, such as those of the Exchange Service.

Earlier statements of the Secretary of Defense announced that there would be no significant changes in the levels of defense spending or the size of the military establishment.

These views were endorsed and concurred in by President Eisenhower when Secretary Wilson visited him in his sick room at Denver. These statements got big headlines in the daily press, reassuring the nation that its defenses would be maintained. But it now looks like the little type in the Guidelines' series will take away the ingredients that go into the make-up of a strong National Defense.

Double Duty For Morale. The key part played by the Army and Air Force Exchange Service is strikingly evident in the report of that joint agency made public this week (see page 2 of this issue of THE JOURNAL).

Its biggest contribution to morale, of course, is the capable performance of its basic functions of providing service personnel with all the items they need (within the limitations imposed by Congress), at prices as moderate as efficient operation will permit. This ready availability of merchandise is not only a convenience to all service families but also adds to military efficiency by making it unnecessary for them to go long distances from their duty stations to do their routine buying. That the services like and support the system is evidenced by the fact that the average soldier and airman spends $21.97 a month in his PX—overseas this runs up to $38.00 per month.

The PXs then do a double duty for morale, because the profits they make above operating expenses, taxes, etc., are returned for use in

Danger in USAF Integration

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

The "Captain, USA" who was penalized by RA status (ANAF JOURNAL 27 Aug. 1955) has a legitimate complaint, even though it is minor compared to those integrated into the Regular Services after 1950.

I was originally Commissioned 8 April 1944, and was integrated into the Regular Air Force in 1951. At this time, regulations did not permit credit for active Commissioned time prior to 1 Jan. 1948. Thus I lost three years and nine months active Commissioned credit.

For two reasons, I now see that the honor of being selected for a Regular Commission is somewhat questionable. First, there is almost certain to be a great increase in the Regular Officer strength of the AF as soon as Congress convenes. These officers will be given Regular Commissions commensurate with their age, experience, etc. It is conceivable that under this program officers several years junior to me will then outrank me in the Regular service. When officers are given additional "constructive" service credit purely on age, as they were in 1946 and 1947, and I am not permitted to be given credit for active Commissioned time, it is time for the Defense Department to consider adequately adjustment of our Promotion List to give us credit for the time we have rightfully earned and deserve.

The second point of doubt is now that ROPA is in effect. I will be consistently one permanent Regular rank below what my regular Reserve rank would be had I continued as a Career Reserve Officer. This is true because I made permanent RA

Captain 1 January, 1955, and since I made reserve Captain 2 May, 1947, I would presently be a permanent Reserve Major under the ROPA. This will cause me to be forever penalized for making Regular by eventually retiring in one grade below what I would be retiring in as a Reserve Officer.

There are hundreds caught in this same dilemma; is there any consideration being taken by the Defense Department to rectify this inequality? If not, is it possible to resign my Regular Commission and take up where I left off as a Reserve Officer?

It is hoped that the Department of Defense planners will give these points consideration before introducing the proposed request for an increase in Regular Officers.

CAPTAIN, USAF

Social Security Tax

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

The letter of M/Sgt. Charles H. Ward, Retired, "Security for the Retired" in the issue of 15 Oct., indicates a very common misunderstanding of Social Security. Note the language, "retired pay *** would be increased *** at no cost to the taxpayer."

This misunderstanding is almost implicit in the law, which refers to Social Security as Old Age and Survivors' Insurance. Many people regard Social Security payments as similar in nature to life insurance or annuity premiums. The OSAI tax is a tax.

Sergeant Ward would be willing to pay 3% (of $350 per month, for example) retroactive to 1 Jan 1951, a total tax, for five years, of $630.00. For this he would receive $108.50 per two battalions of Marines. Today, 180 years later, the U. S. Marine Corps has grown to a fighting organization of three divisions and three air wings—the only component of our defense forces to which Congress has given a guaranteed minimum strength.

From the time of the Revolutionary war where it played an active and outstanding part, the U. S. Marine Corps has been in the forefront in every war in which we have been engaged, while in peace time it has carried the flag to the four corners of the earth.

On the anniversary day the Headquarters Battalion will hold a quiet ceremony at the Marine Memorial on the banks of the Potomac River. The Commandant, General Lemuel C. Shepherd, jr., will read the Marine Corps Message from the Manual and there will be a parade and review. Marines and their friends will celebrate with a ball at the Naval Gun Factory. Throughout the Corps there will be birthday cakes and small celebrations.

The citizenry and the sister services salute the U. S. Marines on their 180th anniversary and extend to them their best wishes.

Generals Learn to Fly

EDITOR, THE JOURNAL:

(Concerning THE JOURNAL's photograph of Maj. Gen. H. H. Howze receiving his wings.)

If my memory serves me correctly, Major General Patrick, a General Officer of the Line detailed as Chief of Air Corps after World War I, obtained his pilot's wings while he was a General Officer.

G. M. PEEK
COL., USA-RET.

Editor's Note—Colonel Peek is quite right. The late Maj. Gen. Mason Mathews Patrick, USA, was taught to fly in 1923 by Maj. (later Maj. Gen.) Herbert A. Dargue, USA. General Patrick, an Engineer Officer, was the first Chief of the Air Corps, having been appointed 21 Oct 1921 and serving in that capacity until his retirement 13 Dec. 1927. However, he had previously served the latter part of World War I as Chief of the Air Service AEF and following the war was awarded the DSM, the citation stating that he "displayed much ability and devotion to duty as director of construction and forestry, and later, as chief of the Air Service of the American Expeditionary Forces, he perfected and ably administered the organization of this important department."

315th Air Div. (Combat Cargo) Serves Services' Needs In Far East Theater Airlift

BY BRIG. GEN. RUSSELL L. WALDRON,
USAF

Commander, 315th Air Division

AS was proven in WW II and again during the Korean War, "airlift" is a precious commodity. In the Far East, the solution of obtaining maximum efficiency and economy in the utilization of available airlift was the consolidation of all Air Force airlift capability in the theater under one airlift commander.

Shortly after the outbreak of the Korean conflict Maj. Gen. (now Lt. Gen.) William H. Tunnner whose wide experience in commanding the WW II "Hump Operation" and more recently the "Berlin Airlift" arrived in the Far East to organize a Korean airlift. He brought with him a staff of airlift specialists who immediately undertook the task of forming the Combat Cargo Command. A few short months later this was designated the 315th Air Division (Combat Cargo) and became a major subordinate command under Far East Air Forces, which in turn was a major command of the Far East Command. Thus all Air Force intra-theater airlift became the responsibility of a single commander reporting directly to the Theater Air Commander.

THE MISSION OF AIRLIFT is defined, "to furnish airlift as required within the Far East Command and Far East Air Forces." This mission has entailed airlift support throughout the Pacific to such places as Korea, Iwo Jima, Guam, Okinawa, Formosa and Philippines. Last year aircraft of the division flew airlift in indirect support of the Indo-China conflict. These were the normal everyday operations. Special projects brought about by the fluid situation prevailing in the Far East since the beginning of the Korean War have also been flown. An example of this would be the evacuation of several hundred wounded French from Indo-China on project "Wounded Warrior."

One of the 315th's more recent missions has been that of providing airlift support for 5th Air Force fighter and fighter bomber organizations, all of which take part in continuous mobility exercises. An outstanding example of what can be accomplished took place during a four day period last January when C-124s, C-119s and C-54s of the Division provided airlift support for the movement of the 18th Fighter Bomber Wing from Okinawa to Formosa during a particularly tense situation that threatened peace in the Taiwan Straits. In that short period over 1,700 hours were flown and nearly 3,500,000 pounds of cargo and troops airlifted.

In the past year and a half the division has provided similar support for over ninety mobility moves of 5th AF units. Some of these organizations have moved several times, rotating from bases in Korea and Japan to those in the Philippines, Okinawa or Formosa.

TO FACILITATE A SMOOTH OPERATION and to insure a complete understanding of how and what the 315th Air Division provides as support, a team of officers headed by the 315th's Director of Operations, toured throughout the Far East recently briefing all participating 5th Air Force units. It was at these meetings that any differences in concepts and ideas were resolved. This had an end result of considerably reducing the time it takes to complete a mobility exercise and had the overall effect of integrated team work.

To be more specific, the overall mission of the 315th Air Division includes the following:

a. Airlift movement of personnel, supplies and equipment into prepared or unprepared landing areas by parachute, or aircraft landings during joint airborne operations.

b. Aerial re-supply and routine airlift of supplies, personnel and equipment.

c. Evacuation of casualties, personnel and materiel.

Airlift has capabilities which are inherent to air movement and warrant further explanation. One of the uses to which airlift is best suited is the movement of critical items of supply and equipment to combat units which have moved faster than their normal supply lines. One of several such instances occurred in October 1950 when 8th Army troops were racing north from Seoul. Combat Cargo airlifted ammunition into grass airstrips near the front—in fact artillery pieces were firing alongside the strip at the time.

IN RAPID AIR EVACUATION OF WOUNDED, intra-theater airlift has done much to save lives and boost morale. Wounded were flown from Korea to Japan from the beginning of the fighting in June 1950, but it was during the heaviest battles that its value was fully realized. The 8th Army breakout at Pusan and the Inchon landings produced casualties which quickly overflowed medical facilities. Timely evacuation saved lives and made room for other wounded.

AN AIRBORNE COMBAT FORCE is a valuable tactical weapon as well as a threat which the enemy has to continually consider in his strategy. The 187th Regimental Combat Team and the 315th Air Division went into action as a team early in the Korean War. In October 1950 an airborne assault was ordered to seize the key North Korean rail and communication centers at Sukchon and Sunchon and take control of the entire area north of Pyongyang to cut off the escape of thousands of enemy troops. More than 300 paratroopers and 300 tons of vehicles, ammunition, weapons and supplies were dropped by 75 C-119s and 40 C-47s on the first day. On the second day another thousand troops were dropped. For three successive days thereafter the C-119s shuttled back and forth dropping supplies. The 8th Army moved north from Seoul to join with the 187th so airlift switched to air-landing supplies at Pyongyang and evacuating wounded.

Movement of critically short and expensive materials by air-lift can save many dollars in addition to making materials available as needed. Items selected for airlift will normally be determined by the following factors: high unit cost, low bulk and weight, critical production problems and — transit packaging and damage considerations. An Air Force survey shows that out of 725,000 inventory items 2% of the items account for 40% of the money value. Air movement can reduce the inventory and pipeline level and thus reduce the overall cost.

IN SUPPLYING UNITS isolated either by the enemy or by terrain, airlift has a unique role. By 1 December 1950, United Nations forces had advanced almost to the Yalu River. Chinese Communists entered the war on 25 November and trapped the 1st Marine and 7th Infantry Division in the Chosin Reservoir area. In the running fight from there to the coast they were supplied entirely by air. More than 1600 tons of ammunition, clothing, gasoline and rations were air-dropped. The first successful drop of a vehicular bridge, actually 12 spans, was made during this operation.

FAST DEPLOYMENT BY AIR-LANDING FORCES is often required. In June 1953 the Reds launched a pre-truce offensive. The 315th Air Division moved 7,000 men and 5,000 tons of materials in less than nine days to bolster the lines. On 16 and 17 May 1952, 2,300 troops and equipment of the 187th

Regimental Combat Team were moved to Pusan by airlift, to be shipped by Navy LSTs to Koje-do island to suppress prison riots.

Other tasks such as delivery of fresh vegetables grown on hydroponic farms in Japan to Korean based troops; leaflet drops and live broadcasts from planes as part of the psychological warfare campaign; and fly and mosquito control at Korean camp areas by aerial spraying are uses to which intra-theater airlift has been put in the Far East. Most of our capability today is being used on airlanded cargo, unit transportability exercises, and passengers, the bulk of whom are Rest and Recuperation troops — however, we maintain the equipment, the trained force and the ability to move out and fly any airlift mission as required.

The basic objective of any organization is to perform the assigned mission in the most economical and effective manner possible and to preserve the integrity of the unit, if possible. This objective necessarily dictates that there must be certain concepts and principles of operation.

THERE ARE THREE BASIC CONCEPTS involved in the 315th's operation of intra-theater airlift. The first is that intra-theater airlift should encompass all combat cargo and air assault missions. To do this it is necessary to exploit the versatility of available aircraft and to use it for every possible task. This particular concept has been applied to the fullest extent possible as evidenced by the fact that the assault requirement for airlift, both training and combat in this theater from 1950 up to the present time has used less than five percent of the total hours flown. Airlift can be and is diverted as needed without delay as air crews are trained to all of the various missions.

The second concept, and one which is very important, is that intra-theater airlift must be the responsibility of a single air-lift commander. This centralizes control of all mission aircraft and provides the flexibility needed to insure their fullest utilization. To have more than one airlift commander in the theater would occasion much duplication of effort and equipment and a resultant lack of efficiency. In the Far East limited facilities have precluded the possibility of having separate airlift services even if deemed otherwise feasible. It is also reasonable to assume that regardless of where a combat area may be, facilities will always be at a premium.

The third concept and one which has really proven itself during the Korean War is that requirements, priorities and allocations should be determined at theater level. It is questionable that there will ever be as much airlift available as commanders desire, and because of this the use of airlift for any given task must be balanced against the effect on other operations. The airlift organization must keep to the problem of transportation and let it be determined at theater level what is to be delivered, where and with what priority.

To fulfill the requirement of this concept a Joint Theater Transportation Board on the Far East Commander's staff consisting of representatives from the Army, Navy and Air Force allocates the airlift available.

The division makes a monthly report to the JTTB estimating in tons its airlift capability. An important consideration is sustained capability. It is from this report that the board assigns the tonnage to be hauled for the Army, Navy and Air Force. The Navy uses less than one percent of the total. Liaison officers from both the Army and Air Force have offices in the Division Headquarters and actually form the link from the user to the Division.

ONCE THE REQUIREMENT for airlift has been determined it is centralized in the Division Transport Movement Control Section. From here aircraft can be diverted or rescheduled at anytime to insure full loads to meet emergencies or for any other purpose that might arise.

There are also certain principles which have guided the 315th's air lift operation in the Far East.

The first of these is, the airlift commander must have centralized control of all aircraft flights. (Basically this means that for maximum flexibility—and for maximum use of airlift—centralized control is a must).

It is most important that communications be controlled. In other words airlift must operate a communications system. Normal command channels of communications are too slow and unreliable. The 5th Communications Squadron which was organized as a separate unit reporting directly to the airlift commander performs this duty in the Far East.

Another principle is to control all air terminals. This does not mean control of the bases into which flights are scheduled but rather the terminals themselves. For timely and expeditious delivery, it is most important that ground time be kept at a minimum, and without this control it takes an extremely high degree of coordination and team work which is understandably hard to obtain when there are combat conditions and split responsibilities. The division's primary interest in air terminal operations lies in movement—receiving manifesting, warehousing and handling of cargo. (This is being done by division transportation personnel because it expedites movement.)

The following principle is one that is the most misunderstood of all and one that is of greatest importance if a demand for airlift beyond normal capabilities should suddenly be thrust upon the tactical airlift organization. Airlift must be operated within a sustained capability. Higher headquarters at Air Force level determines the number of flying hours that each type transport aircraft in the division can fly for a given period of time. The pipeline of replacement parts is based on this programmed number of hours. Therefore, any time aircraft are flown in excess of the predetermined sustained capability it has the effect of greatly reducing that particular aircraft's availability should it be necessary to press it into emergency operation. This might be compared to the bank teller who occasionally takes $10.00 out of the till with the idea in mind of paying it back later. Experience shows that the money is seldom paid back. As for the airlift fleet if it is repeatedly committed beyond a sustained capability the day soon comes when maintenance, supply and crew limitations catch up and none is available.

The last principle is that airlift must provide timely deliveries. It can be assumed that when airlift is requested it is because of an urgent requirement and speed is essential. Many airlift operations are joint actions with other services and air units and a schedule must be set up if the benefits of airlift are to be realized. It is most important that the user gets what he requires, where he wants it, and when he wants it.

The principles and concepts outlined have evolved into a doctrine which is basic for intra-theater airlift operations. It certainly cannot be claimed that this doctrine is the answer for all intra-theater airlift operations in the future, but it is the ultimate as developed for the Far East theater. The nearly five years of experience gained in the largest and greatest of all airlifts will be found enumerated in airlift doctrines of the future.

MEMO For Journal Readers

✓ THE SERVICES ARE WATCHING to see whether or not Sec'y Brucker broaches with AF Sec'y Quarles the "Memorandum of Understanding," worked out by former Chiefs of Staff Collins and Vandenberg to restrict the weight and use of Army aircraft. Many contend that this unusual "treaty" skirted the concept of civilian control, the feeling being that it should have been worked out—if at all—by the Service Secretaries, including the Secretary of Defense. GEN. TAYLOR, ARMY CofS, CONTENDS that Army aviation should be restricted only by budgetary factors, as with other weapons, but there is no easy channel for him to seek abandonment of the Memorandum. Mr. Brucker, on the other hand, at the Secretaries Council, has the opportunity, if he desires, to make a bold new plea for Army aviation.

THE NEW DoD ECONOMY ORDER curtailing expenditures for recreational facilities is certain to place a heavier load on PX profits as a source of funds to provide adequate morale and welfare installations and equipment for Servicemen. It had been hoped, based on statements by top Pentagon officials during the past year, that more appropriated funds would be used for this purpose, which in turn would result in reduced prices at the PX. BUT THERE'S BEEN A SWITCH, and the Administration now intends to restrict sharply use of Treasury Funds for swimming pools, golf courses, and other recreational facilities—this despite repeated assertions that military men and their families are entitled to living conditions approximating those of the average American community.

WRESTLING WITH ENLISTED MEN is now permitted for Navy and Marine Corps officers. The decision to lift the ban on such competition was taken "in order to permit officer competition in wrestling and to afford officers the opportunity to prepare for Olympic tryouts." Though they may compete in all other sports, Navy and Marine Corps officers still are not allowed to box with enlisted men.

THE CRACK 82d AIRBORNE DIVISION at Ft. Bragg, N. C., getting ready for Sage Brush, scored a record during October when 19,123 proficiency parachute jumps were made. Object was to qualify as many men of the 82d as possible and to test the capabilities of the parachute riggers. Maj. Gen. J. H. Trapnell, USA, CG, made his 100th jump on 27 Oct., with Col. Theodore Kershaw, USAF, Commander of Pope AFB, N. C., piloting the C-119. Col. Otho E. Holmes, USA, Commander of the 505th AIR, was another jumper; he made a WWII combat jump into Holland from a plane flown by Colonel Kershaw.

THE NAVY WHICH HAS TONED DOWN public statements about the strategic bombing capabilities of its Forrestal class carriers apparently does not intend to be so chary about the jobs that can be done by the new Martin P6M jet SeaMaster. Its basic missions, the Navy has said, are photo reconnaissance and mine laying. ADM. BURKE, CNO, WENT FURTHER this week as he told of the plane's ability to deliver atomic bombs. As with the carriers, the seaplane "will have the support and the protection of the myriad weapons of the sea to exploit her full potentiality and use of the seas to our country's maximum advantage." IT WILL BE SURPRISING if the Air Force, charged with strategic bombardment as a prime responsibility, does not point to such a weapon as the SeaMaster as a potential addition to the Strategic Air Command. WHILE THE NAVY TALKS of using submarines to fuel seaplanes, the Air Force more likely would rely on its new jet flying tankers.

✓ ARMY SPOKESMEN increasingly will link the word "artillery" to its growing arsenal of guided missiles. Gen. Taylor, CofS, says that the "family of guided missiles being developed by the Army . . . is the artillery of the future." That approach would help offset potential criticism that the Army is encroaching on the Air Force.

THE ARMY-AF EXCHANGE SERVICE is conducting an experiment in which it is operating PX's directly for MATS in the ZI and for the Eastern Air Defense Force. A civilian manager replaces the military PX officer in this operation. The plan could be expanded to other commands.

THE AIR FORCE EXPECTS that 20 per cent of its personnel, including families, will be travelling by air by Jan. '57.

SECDEF WILSON'S GUIDELINES to the Service Secretaries (The Journal 22 Oct.) are getting prompt attention. Word already has gone out to installations to cut back on planned programs. At Ft. Carson, Colo., for example, an order was received directing "substantial cuts" in the maintenance and operations area.

THE NAVY MAY BE ASKED to explain to Congress why it does not intend to follow the action of the Army and Air Force in granting commissions to male nurses. It's no secret that the Services were not overly enthusiastic about the male nurse legislation, but in view of the current shortage of nurses, the Navy could find itself in an embarrassing position.

✓ THE NAVY HAS CONFIRMED its intention to downgrade representation at MATS Hdqs., Andrews AFB, D. C. Capt. Harry P. Badger, USN, has been designated Senior Navy Officer. Heretofore, a Navy rear admiral has been assigned to the Joint Service Hdqs.

ARMY HOPES FOR IMPROVED promotion opportunities to the rank of master sergeant were dimmed by SecDef Wilson's recent order calling upon the Secretaries to take a new look at promotion policies. The Army has been trying to win approval from the Budget Bureau for an increased quota of E-7's.

PLEASED WITH THE SUCCESS of the switch involving the 10th Infantry Division, which went to Germany, and the 1st Infantry Division, which took over at Ft. Riley, Kans., the Army was getting set late this week to tell of other Gyroscope activity. It's expected the 8th Infantry Division at Ft. Carson, Colo., will replace the 9th Infantry Division at Goppingen, Germany, next summer. Whether the 9th goes to Carson is not yet certain. REPORTS ALSO INDICATE that the 2d Infantry Division at Ft. Lewis, Wash., will swap places with the 71st Infantry Division in Alaska. To round out the changes, the 4th Infantry Division's designation is slated for return to the U. S. to replace the 71st Infantry Division colors. PREVIOUSLY ANNOUNCED was the assignment of the 3d Armored Division from Ft. Knox, Ky., to Europe and the Gyroscope rotation of the 11th Airborne Division from Ft. Campbell, Ky., next year, to be replaced by the 5th Infantry Division, now in Europe.

How to ADD INCOME FOR RETIREMENT

With the purchasing power of the dollar at about half what it was ten years ago, it is reasonable to assume that the dollar you save today may have value fluctuations in the future.

Many civilian and service personnel are preparing for extra retirement income to help compensate for a possible decline in dollar purchasing power through the regular purchase of Mutual Fund shares . . . Funds comprised of dividend paying securities. And doing it out of current earnings.

As our company has counseled thousands of civilians and service personnel, we are well aware of the important problem of supplementing fixed-dollar savings for extra retirement income. Let us help you get started on the way to a more sound financial future. For complete information, just mail a postcard with your name and address for our free booklet, "The Modern Way to Invest."

MRS. ALBERTA F. BARSE

"Never More than a Call Apart"

We received a very nice letter from a woman on Long Island, N. Y., the other day and we thought you might like to share it with us.

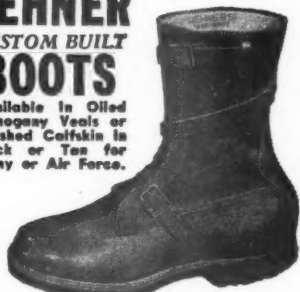

Mrs. Barse's letter is typical of the many we receive from people who are kind enough to write about the value of their service and the friendliness and help of telephone people.

Such letters are not only pleasant to receive but an encouragement to all of us to do even better in the days to come.

Opening the one-year celebration at the mid-Pacific dependent's haven was the Air Force Band of the Pacific whose rousing "Military Medley" saluted each branch of the Department of Defense. Chaplain William L. Keen of the 6486th Air Base Wing cited the record of Hickham wives who have devoted their time to meeting incoming service dependents and escorting them to the restful modern interior of the Lounge.

RADM, William D. Johnson, USN, Commander of Pacific Division, MATS offered his thanks to the Hickham ladies for their wholehearted assistance to their sister service wives.

While the band played "Happy Birthday," a green and gold trimmed angel food cake with its one bright yellow candle sparkled the eyes of onlooking youngsters. Two tempted tots, five-year-old Michael and Patricia Kelley of Boston edged to the cake for a fingerful of icing. The children of Maj. and Mrs. R. P. Kelley were flying via MATS from Nagoya AFB, Japan to their family's new Mainland assignment.

Coffee hostesses for the morning included:

Mrs. Beightler Speaks

Chinese Auction

■ FT. WADSWORTH, N. Y. Their far-flung travels as Army officers' wives, plus their ingenuity at the do-it-yourself fad, provided fun and profit recently for the Women's Group. Duff, wife of Brigadier General Duff, post commander, turned carpenter, producing napkin holders and hand-carved boxes.

Mrs. Evan F. Bourne and Mrs. Jack Stovall. All praised the work of lounge beginners Mrs. William Troccoli, Mrs. E. G. Reh-kemper, Mrs. W. B. McAdams and others who have been with the lounge since its start.

All women working at the lounge are volunteers with the aim of assisting, in any way possible, to make pleasant the short stay in Hawaii for dependents traveling via the Pacific Division, MATS. For each incoming mother and child, the lounge has comfortable sofas and chairs, fresh beds and fresh cribs with places to bathe and feed infants. TV and Nursery facilities are also provided.

Due to limited facilities the lounge is only equipped to service dependents in a "through" travel status but a "full house" is more often the rule rather than the exception. This gathering toasted Mrs. Beverly Barclay whose citation, read aloud by Maj. John Gonge, Admiral Johnson's Aide-de-Camp, praised her "caring for 80 children in one four-hour watch" last July. Cake cutting by the Deputy Commander of the division, Brig. Gen. George S. Cassidy, USAF, opened the guest refreshment portion of the morning party.

Use of the lounge has increased steadily since its opening last year. 554 dependents were served in its first month and the number soon increased to an average of some 1,200 a month, with more than 2,000 a month during the recent heavy summer rotations.

Obituaries

Maj. Gen. Lorenzo D. Gasser, USA-Ret.

Funeral services were held on 2 Nov. at the Ft. Myer, Va. Chapel, for Maj. Gen. Lorenzo Dow Gasser, USA-Ret., who died at Walter Reed Army Hospital, Washington, D. C., on 29 Oct., with burial at Arlington National Cemetery. He was 79 years old.

A native of Lykens, Ohio, General Gasser was a veteran of the Spanish-American War, as a captain in the Ohio Volunteers, and he accompanied General John J. Pershing's expedition into Mexico in 1916. In WWI, General Gasser saw action with the 2d Division at Chateau-Thierry. In 1932, he commanded the 31st Infantry Regiment, during its role of protecting the International Settlement in Shanghai, in the clashes between Japanese and Chinese forces. Appointed Acting Deputy Chief of Staff under General George C. Marshall, in 1939, General Gasser held that post until his retirement from active duty, upon reaching the age of 64, in 1940.

In May 1941, however, as the war crisis grew, he was recalled from retirement and named the War Department's representative on the Board for Civilian Protection. General Gasser later became Assistant Director of the Office of Civilian Defense, headed by the late Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia, and in 1942, received his promotion to major general. In July of that year, he was one of eight general officers to be named by President Roosevelt to try eight captured German saboteurs. In 1943, General Gasser served as president of the War Department Manpower Board.

He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. George Herbert of New York City, and Mrs. Charles D. Lazenby of Portland, Ore.; and one brother, Mr. Earl R. Gasser of Ann Arbor, Mich.

Col. Orville Melvin Hewitt, USA-Ret.

Col. Orville Melvin Hewitt, USA-Ret., died near Newland, N. C., on 29 Oct., while participating in a field trip of the Southern Appalachian Mineral Society of Asheville, N. C., of which he was president.

More familiarly known as "Tiny," Colonel Hewitt will long be remembered for his football prowess at the University of Pittsburgh, which he attended from 1919 to 1923, and at the U. S. Military Academy, where he played fullback for four years and was captain of the team in his first class year. He made "All American" at both institutions. He was graduated from the Academy in the Class of 1927.

Colonel Hewitt's nineteen years of active duty included service with various Infantry regiments in the United States, the Philippines and Hawaii, where he was serving a tour at the time of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. During WWII, Colonel Hewitt saw action with the 106th Division in the Battle of the Bulge, when he received recognition for heroism in action. He was retired from active duty in 1946 for physical disability.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Virginia C. Hewitt of 6 East Forest Rd., Biltmore Forest, Asheville; one son, Michael Adam Hewitt, 16, presently a student at Lawrenceville School, N. J.; two brothers and three sisters, Mr. John Hewitt, Mr. Karl Hewitt, Miss Bertha Hewitt, Mrs. Herman Hickman, all of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Mrs. Eva Carey of Ft. Thomas, Ky.

INDUSTRY IN DEFENSE

New Technical Data Regs Official by '56

Pentagon officials have decided to separate the controversial regulations on "Technical Data" from "Copyrights," Part II, Section IX, ASPR, and express them in a new Part III, Section IX. Officials expect the new rules to be completed and ready for the final legal step of printing in the Federal Register by the first of the year. The regulations for "Patents," Part I, Section IX, ASPR, were finalized early this year.

All these new proposed regulations have been submitted to industry for comment and while a variety of suggestions were received that were designed to restrict the contractor's drawings and technical data to instructional, operational and testing purposes only, the new rules now being rewritten will allow the government full reproduction rights.

Industry spokesmen are critical of the effectiveness of proposed contract clauses that are designed to prevent trade secrets from falling into competitors' hand for commercial use. The new regulations which are written in heavy technical and legal language will not be again submitted to industry for comment.

USAF Lets Contract To Repair USA Copters

The Air Force has awarded the Bell Aircraft Corporation a contract to modify, inspect and repair 91 Army H-13 Bell helicopters.

The contract, which will involve work on Army H-13D, E and some late model H-13G helicopters, amounts to approximately $500,000.

The first helicopters to be serviced have arrived at the Bell Aircraft Texas Division at Ft. Worth, Tex., and will be delivered at a rate of nine a month until the contract's expiration 30 June 1956.

Fifth Forrestal To New York

The New York Shipbuilding Corporation, Camden, N. J., has been awarded a contract to build the fifth Forrestal class aircraft carrier (CVA-63) at the quoted fixed price of $119,841,034.

Invitations were issued to the three private shipyards qualified to construct this ship.

First Navy Carrier-Type Jet Trainer Delivered

The Navy's first carrier-type jet trainer, the T2V-1, has been completed on schedule by Lockheed Aircraft Corporation, just six months after structural work first started.

The new plane, first dual-control jet trainer ever ordered as a seagoing teacher of carrier flying techniques, incorporates the first boundary layer control system of any U. S. production aircraft. Boundary layer control is a method of controlling the flow of air over certain surfaces of the wing to improve lift and controllability.

A prototype model of the new plane recently completed an extensive, 10-month period of carrier suitability tests, including catapult takeoffs and arrested landings at Inyokern Naval Air Station, Calif.

Wings for the T2V-1 are built by Beech Aircraft Corporation. The aft fuselage and tail section are supplied by Cessna Aircraft Company, and the nose assembly is provided by Rheem Manufacturing Company.

New 'Copter Plant Dedicated In Conn.

Helicopter production for the Army and Marine Corps will be stepped up with dedication of an $18,000,000 plant of the Sikorsky Aircraft Division of the United Aircraft Corporation at Stratford, Conn.

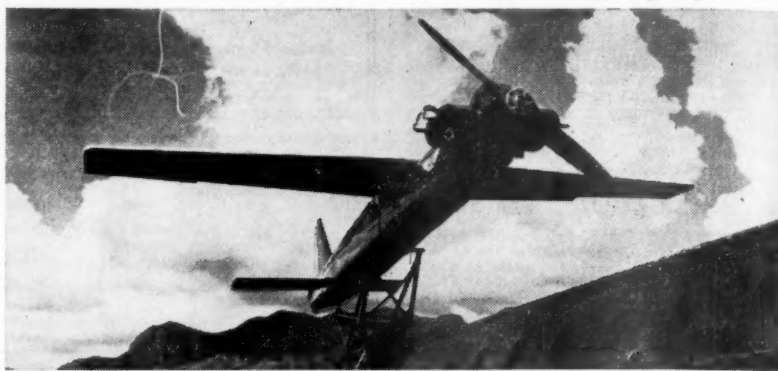

The new facility will be under direct supervision of famed helicopter pioneer Igor I. Sikorsky.

Among those who participated in the dedication ceremonies on 26 Oct. were Lt. Gen. Christian F. Schildt, USMC, who heads Marine Corps Aviation; Maj. Gen. Bertram Hayford, USA, and RADM. Thomas Robbins, USN, Chief of Staff of the Naval War College at Newport, R. I.

Another speaker was H. M. Horner, president of United Aircraft. The principal address, largely a tribute to Mr. Sikorsky, was made by Senator Prescott Bush (R-Conn.).

The new helicopter plant is slated to go into full production next year; it began operations on a limited basis this Spring.

Army Turns Radio Controlled Target Drone To Combat Aerial Photography Use

A SMALL camera-carrying drone, controlled by radio, has been added to the weapons of combat aerial photography by the Army Signal Corps. The drone was developed at the Army Electronic Proving Ground, Ft. Huachuca, Ariz.

Although it has a wing span of only 12 feet, the drone can fly 228 miles per hour and climb at a rate of 3,060 feet per minute. The take-off is jet-assisted. However, it is propeller driven by a gasoline motor while in the air. Over-all length of the drone also is 12 feet.

It can take either still photographs or motion pictures from a low altitude range of several hundred feet up to heights of more than four miles in the air. By using the drone, tactical commanders can be supplied with aerial surveillance photographs in less than an hour's time.

The Signal Corps explained the drone can operate in any area because it is jettied from a launching catapult thus eliminating the need for an airfield.

Another distinct advantage is that the drone will operate in all kinds of weather without risk to personnel and can perform its mission regardless of whether the U. S. Army has air superiority. Also, it is said, the drone will provide aerial surveillance at less cost than many other means now used.

The proper name of the drone is the RP-71. It is a radio-controlled aerial target plane which was developed by the Army Electronic Proving Ground at Ft. Huachuca, Ariz., and adapted to camera-carrying duty.

Operation of the drone is simple. The catapult is assembled and the drone prepared for flight in about five minutes. The catapult is charged, the controls are checked, the engine is started, safety gadgets are removed and the drone is launched.

A control operator on the ground guides the craft on its mission and returns it to the launching area. The engine is stopped and the parachute which brings the drone to the ground is opened. Upon landing, the films are picked up for immediate processing.

Report On Navy Planes To Be Made Next Year

The Military Operations Subcommittee of the House, investigating the performance of the McDonnell J3H fighter and the Westinghouse J-40 jet engine, has ended its four day hearing with interest centering on the contractual policies of BuAer and fiscal procurement practices of the Navy.

Representatives of McDonnell Aircraft Corp. and the Westinghouse Electric Corp. explained that Navy changes in specifications for a heavier all weather fighter were the cause of the failure of the J3H to meet performance requirements. The Navy's calculated risk that the jet engine builders could increase the thrust to propel this heavier aircraft failed to materialize.

This responsibility was evidenced by the fact that most of contractual agreements were letters of intent and development contracts in which the contractors were not held responsible for performance and which do not permit termination for default.

Final settlements of these contracts have not yet been made and the subcommittee was interested in the causes of such delays in all large Defense contracts.

Committee members evidenced particular interest in the statement of Asst Sec'y Raymond H. Fogler that every effort was being made to give equal consideration to small as well as large contractors. Mr. Fogler spoke of the 75 per cent progress payments advanced to all contractors although it was admitted that in the past for some large firms this was increased to 95 per cent at the secretarial level.

Although the two companies being investigated were not affected by the order, the chairman asked the Navy its reasons for the recent directive limiting advances to 105 per cent to contractors holding large and long term contracts.

Admiral James S. Russell, Chief of BuAer, emphasized that complaints of industry against delays in finalizing letters of intent and settlement of contracts would be overcome if their budget would allow hiring of sufficient competent service negotiators.

The subcommittee staff stated that some additional procurement data is to come from the Navy and that their report will not be ready to release until Congress reconvenes after the first of the year.

Several members indicated they expected further investigation of other Navy airframe and jet engines contracts after Congress convenes and the political tension increases as the election approaches.

Army Opens First Self-Service Supply Center At Ft. Lee, Va.

(The following report from Ft. Lee, Va., tells of the opening of the Army's first Self-Service Supply Center, which could become a standard Army-wide facility if the experiment proves successful.)

THE first of two Army self-service centers for experiment with a new plan in issuing supplies opened at Ft. Lee, Va. on 1 Nov.

Col. C. C. Holcomb, Chief of Staff, Quartermaster Training Center, cut the ribbon at the test site, formally opening the doors for "business."

Modeled upon the modern super-market, the new "Self-Service Supply Center" is designed to streamline the job of issuing low-value, high-volume office, housekeeping and maintenance items, like carbon paper, soap, brooms and tent pins. Complete with shopping carts, open-end gondolas and some fast-pitched merchandising practices, it may well shape up as the supply sergeant's dream of escape from the vast sea of paperwork.

The second of the supply "super-markets" is scheduled to open at Fort Lewis, Wash. 1 Jan.

Ft. Lee's center was launched in a colorful ceremony, sparked by music of the 392d Army Band. The official party was conducted on a tour of the center by Maj. Robert R. Dando, USA, project officer. The formal ceremony wound up when 12 shoppers selected from various commands made the first "purchases."

Several hundred shoppers, representing each military unit and activity on this Post attended orientation sessions prior to the opening—learning the ins and outs of the plan.

As in a supermarket, the soldier shopping for his company or activity that uses expendable supplies will find the goods attractively displayed and price-tagged. No requisition or issue slips—the usual multi-copy forms—will have to be filled out before drawing supplies. Instead, the Army's version of the "charge-plate" is the shopper's authority to buy, while a cash-register tape will list his monthly credit allowance and the balance after purchases are made. This monthly allowance is based on an analysis of per capita issues made over a representative period.

It is expected the average shopper will visit the center once a week, although no restriction is placed on the number of times he shops, nor what he buys.

The initial stock contains close to 800 different types of Quartermaster items that have multiple customer appeal. Nevertheless, many of the shelves are empty this week, for the center was furnished with the idea of including supplies for the other technical services sometime next January.

Items that have limited use by one activity will continue to be drawn on the traditional system.

Comprising close to 4,000 square feet, the "store" sports modern fixtures, including four-foot-high, oak-faced gondolas and wall cases with peg board backings for easy display. A green and white vinyl floor spotlights the color scheme used throughout the building.

In the large open area, four departments are set up, containing related or homogeneous groups of items. A shopper need only read the signs to find office supplies, housekeeping items, maintenance goods and miscellaneous supplies like insect repellents and adhesives.

For easy reach, the wall cases and goldolas house the broken lot items that are not restricted. The "like-to-have" items, such as Scotch tape, four-ounce cans of oil and car polish, are displayed in a showcase close to the checkout counter for controlled sale by the clerk stationed there. Case lots are stored in the rear of the store.

To provide the center with all the earmarks of a true retail operation, supervisors of the plan have found a real merchandiser in Major Dando as project officer. Coming to Ft. Lee from the Ft. Bliss, Texas Post Exchange, he has had considerable retail experience.

The "supermarket" plan is expected to run in its pilot stage here until sometime next summer. If deemed successful by the Department of the Army, it will be placed into effect at all major installations throughout the nation and overseas commands. By this new setup, the Army hopes to reduce the quantity of items required in the pipeline, as well as cut down costly book-keeping. Architects of the plan feel "hoarding" will be discouraged if customers are assured that supplies are available at all times at a central distribution point.

Overall supervisors of the project, both at Ft. Lee and Ft. Lewis, are the Offices of The Quartermaster General and the Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics.

BLUE UNIFORM "STRONGLY ENCOURAGED"

General Maxwell D. Taylor, Army Chief of Staff, has "strongly encouraged" officers and warrant officers in the Military District of Washington to obtain and wear the Army Blue Uniform at daytime and evening social functions "as soon as possible."

Officially, the Army Blue Uniform does not become mandatory for officers and warrant officers until 1 Oct. 1957.

General Taylor said in Memorandum 670-1 that its use "for general off-duty wear is considered appropriate, and is preferred to the wear of civilian clothes at social functions, both daytime and evening."

It was stated that the Army Blue Uniform, when worn with a bow tie on occasions when a tuxedo is appropriate, will constitute a dress uniform; when worn with a four-in-hand necktie, the blue garb will be semidress.

A MAJOR DEVELOPMENT IN MODERN ELECTRIC POWER*NEW CAT* GENERATOR

Nothing like it for simple operation, flexible application, compact power, rugged construction, long life and ease of maintenance.

Heart of the new line of Cat Diesel Electric Sets, providing in one package the best features of self-regulated and externally-regulated generator plants—you get more for your money.

Easily paralleled with other generators now in use.

Major advantages of the new CAT Generators

- 1. MATCHED TO ENGINE PERFORMANCE. Each Cat Generator is designed and built to exactly match the Cat Engine powering it, assuring maximum efficiency in a simple, complete package.
- 2. SELF-REGULATING, WITH CLOSE VOLTAGE REGULATION. Designed to meet the needs of all applications now served by self-regulated or externally-regulated generators. Provides steady voltage from no load to full load.
- 3. ADJUSTABLE TO SPECIAL CONDITIONS. During initial installations, the terminal voltage and voltage "droop" can be adjusted to meet special conditions of applications. After that, adjustments are sealed and no further adjustments needed.
- 4. EASY TO INSTALL. No complicated switchgear or external voltage regulators are needed.
- 5. VERSATILE IN APPLICATION. Easily paralleled with other generators now in use.
- 6. SMALL AND COMPACT. Occupy less space than other generators. Reduction in frame size, close coupling, top-mounted exciter results in a shorter over-all package length.
- 7. BIG ELECTRICALLY. Excellent motor starting ability—capacity to handle the surge of heavy starting loads.
- 8. EASY TO MAINTAIN. Heavy-duty, single-bearing, close-coupled construction. The single bearing is easily accessible and is lubricated from an oil reservoir that requires filling only once a year.
- 9. RUGGEDLY CONSTRUCTED. An improved heavy-duty, laminated pole rotor decreases pole heating and increases rotor life.
- 10. DESIGNED FOR LONG LIFE. Built to match the long life of the Caterpillar Engine powering them.
